

Brief Curriculum Vitae of Dr Ioannis P. Sotiropoulos, PhD, MPhil, MA, BA

Dr Ioannis P. Sotiropoulos is a Senior Research Fellow and Director of the Sector of Geopolitics of the Cold War in the Laboratory of Geocultural Analyses of the Greater Middle East and Turkey in the Department of Turkish Studies and Modern Asian Studies of the National and Kapodistrian University of Athens, (NKUA). He is the Director of Studies in the Postgraduate Study Programme “Geopolitical Analysis, Geostrategic Synthesis, Defence and International Security Studies” of the Department of Turkish Studies and Modern Asian Studies of the National and Kapodistrian University of Athens, (NKUA), and he also lectures on Geopolitics and Geostrategy of the Continental (Eurasian) Power, Geopolitics of Central Asia, and the Arctic Zone in the same programme. He has been a Senior Researcher in numerous research institutes and a Scientific Advisor to a great number of geopolitical committees, with a particular focus on energy, where he focuses on the analysis of international energy issues via the Systemic Geopolitical Analysis. He has been a Research Guest Scholar, DAAD Fellow of the Global and European Studies Institute, (GESI) of the University of Leipzig, within the three-year interdisciplinary research program “Repositioning Greece in a Globalizing World”, 2014-2017. He is member of the Scientific Committee “European Committee of Geopolitics for National Issues” of the American Hellenic Educational Progressive Association, (AHEPA) and Founding Member of the Hellenic Institute for Geopolitics and National Security, (ELIGEA). As an expert, he participates in the par excellence center, “The European Center of Excellence for Countering Hybrid Threats-Hybrid CoE, Institute for the Research and Strategic Analysis in the Hybrid COE”, of the European Union, while systematically dealing with the geopolitical aspect of Hybrid Threats. His research interests are reflected in his wide range of scholarly publications in Systemic Geopolitical Analysis, the Geopolitics and Geostrategy of Eurasia, Soviet and Russian Foreign Policy, the Security of the Southeastern Mediterranean, the Energy Security of the European Union, and the Geopolitics and Geostrategy of the Central Asia and the Arctic Circle. Sotiropoulos is the author of the scientific monograph: The International Relations Parameter as Fundamental Reason for the Soviet Defeat in Afghanistan, Scientific Library, Scientific Series: Political and Defense Issues, Defense Analyses Institute, (DAI), Athens, 2006. Being senior member of the research team, he has also significantly contributed in the scientific monograph, Geopolitics and Geostrategies of the Syrian Crisis, Leimon, Athens, 2015. His latest scientific monograph, based on recently declassified sources, is entitled: The Soviet Intervention in Afghanistan. The Geopolitical Analysis of the Causes, Leimon, Athens, 2021. Sotiropoulos is currently working on the research of his new book titled The Soviet Withdrawal from Afghanistan. The Geopolitical Analysis of the Causes.